Explore the Poetry of Robert Frost

Join Stephen Collins for a free four session interactive seminar on the poetry of Robert Frost on Saturdays, January 4, 11, 18, and 25 at 2 pm. The program will be at the Lincoln Library on January 4, 11, and 25 and at Bemis Hall on January 18. It is sponsored by the Council on Aging and the Public Library. According to Collins, “Robert Frost, in my opinion, is an underread and often misunderstood poet. He doesn’t fit easily into any preconceived category, however, that is precisely what some people have tried to do with him. We will work with some of his better known poems as well as some that never seem to get much attention.” Stephen Collins, a native of Cambridge, performs one-man shows and teaches courses on historical figures like Melville, Walt Whitman, Robert Frost, James MacNeill Whistler, and Shakespeare.

This Month’s Speakers

December 2: Craig Donaldson — A Holiday Story: Massachusetts and the 1917 Halifax Explosion

On December 6, 1917 the Norwegian vessel SS Imo and French cargo ship SS Mont-Blanc, which was full of high explosives, collided close to Halifax Harbor. The resulting explosion, the largest man-made explosion at the time, destroyed much of the city of Halifax, killing 2000 people and injuring 9000 others. Boston, which had a relationship with Halifax dating back to its earliest days in 1749 as a shipping and fishing settlement, immediately sent people and supplies to help. Learn the story of Boston’s Herculean rescue efforts and the holiday gift given by Halifax in gratitude that we still enjoy today.

December 9: Ron McAdow — Our Winter Birds

“Our Winter Birds” is a slide lecture about birds that spend the winter in our neighborhood or that visit when conditions permit. Ron will show photos of songbirds, hawks, owls, and woodpeckers, and will discuss their adaptations for winter survival. Data from the long-running Concord Christmas Bird Count will illustrate changes in our winter bird population over the decades. This presentation is an opportunity to learn more about the birds seen at or near our backyard feeders as well as the birds that are more of a challenge to observe.

December 16: Mo Movassaghi — Chemical Synthesis and Study of Bioactive Natural Products

Join MIT Professor Mo Movassaghi as he brings us along on his Group’s exploration of secondary metabolites, representative complex molecules and natural products, the science of chemical synthesis of complex molecules which is his group’s research focus, along with evaluation of the biological activity of complex natural products, and the exciting intersection of chemistry and biology in broad terms.
